EDITOR'S PAGE

As Editor-in-Chief of the West Virginia Law Review, I have received, by virtue of the visibility of my position, much of the credit for the quality and timely publication of Volume 82. I would like to accept this credit, however, I personally feel that it is misplaced. The editor-in-chief deals with public relations; the editorial board and staff are responsible for the actual transition of material from manuscript to book form. An editor-in-chief is only as good as the people in which he has placed his trust. I have had the good fortune this year to have placed my trust in diligent, highly motivated individuals who have given of themselves more than I could ever have hoped. It has been an honor and pleasure to have worked with these individuals; I will never be able to express adequately my appreciation to them. It is to these people that I wish to dedicate this Issue; without them, the quality of Volume 82 would not have been possible.

I also take this opportunity to thank Professor Alfred S. Neely, IV, faculty advisor to the Law Review. Mr. Neely has been a friend as well as an advisor, making my job much easier. I would also like to thank D. Lyn Dotson, Assistant Dean of the College of Law, for his continuing interest in and contribution to the Law Review. He is an invaluable supporter. Finally, I would encourage the staff of Volume 83 to strive for continuing improvement in the quality of the West Virginia Law Review.
