Volume 75 of the West Virginia Law Review has strived to provide a wide range of articles for the members of the bench and bar. This year we have started publishing short lead articles under the heading of "Comments." Additionally, student notes by second and third year members of the Law Review, often combining their efforts on one group project, have appeared with greater frequency. In this issue we are printing two "Book Reviews" on legal publications. We hope these articles and our selected note topics have been interesting, informative, and useful. To insure the quality of future issues, we solicit your comments and suggestions as to how we can improve the Law Review. It is through this process of feedback that we are able to produce the best publication for our readers.

The annual Law Review banquet was held on February 23. Over eighty members of the faculty, staff, and Law Review attended. Mr. J. Timothy Philipps, our faculty advisor, was honored for his dedicated service to the Law Review. Mr. Gregory R. Gorrell of Charleston, West Virginia, was introduced as the Editor-in-Chief for Volume 76 of the West Virginia Law Review.
